MONTAGE 1987 Montevallo, Alabama

Montevallo Pride

There is a pride at the University of Montevallo that is very much alive. You can feel this pride the very first time you walk down the red brick paths that cover the campus. This pride can be seen in the classrooms, and can be heard at every athletic event. The pride that began at Montevallo will carry on in our lives, professional and otherwise, long after we graduate and leave the red brick paths of this campus.

The Alabama Girls Industrial school was established as the result of a bill introduced in the State Senate in 1892 by Sol D. Bloch. The school opened its doors on October 12, 1896, with Captain Henry Clay Reynolds of Montevallo as president. There were ten members of the faculty and a student body of 145. The only physical facility was Reynolds Hall, erected in 1851. The curriculum offered in 1896 consisted of high school subjects, special work in commercial courses, normal training, music, and the domestic arts.

The Alabama Industrial School became Alabama College during Dr. Thomas Waverly Palmer's administration, and in the fall of 1969, by act of legislature, it became the University of Montevallo.

The average student attending the University of Montevallo is from Alabama, traveling anywhere from a few miles to a few hundred miles to campus. Some students travel from as far away as Florida, Georgia, New York, and there are students from several different foreign countries. There are several factors that attract such diverse, as well as quality students to the gates of UM. Montevallo is located in Shelby county and is near the geographical center of Alabama. It is situated 30 miles south of Birmingham and 60 miles north of Montgomery. The climate is usually mild with an average temperature of 64 degrees. The picturesque campus and friendly people only add to the quality education that a Montevallo student receives.

Excuse Me, could someone tell me what all this white stuff is?

Fashion Statement

There's really no one way to define fashion. Yet Fashion, year in and out, can define almost anyone's personality and lifestyle. Several major fashion trends made their way to UM for 1986-87. Girls could be seen wearing large bow to hold back their hair, and a redefined western look as well as the neo-sixties look were the major fashion trends. The preppy and punk styles seemed to fade but a few die hards insisted on plaid and Izod or leather and Mohawks according to their preference.

Jimmy Buffett would feel right at home with the typical UM student opting for comfort rather than fashion. Without Mother to do laundry, ones wardrobe consists mostly of jerseys, jeans, t-shirts, and sweat suits.

BERLIN
Live

The Berlin Wall went up in Alabama this year. Well, not quite the brick version, but it held an audience at the University of Montevallo with more power and conviction than the real thing . . .

The production was broadcast live, nationwide, by the College Satellite Network as part of a joint effort by Berlin in Montevallo and Onigo-Boingo in Los Angeles . . .

The production offered a chance for University of Montevallo communications majors to participate in putting a live rock 'n roll concert on the air . . .

In the Winter of 1984 Berlin was the proverbial hot property, a band with a lock on a moody, evocative and original kind of modern music; a sound that had earned them both extravagant critical praise and a handful of innovative and accessible hit singles . . .

A couple of years before they had first burst forth, seemingly from nowhere, with a self-produced and financed EP that had, in fact, been the culmination of six years of planning and polishing . . .

PLEASURE VICTIM went on to yield two major hits with "SEX" and "THE METRO" selling an astonishing 600,000 copies . . .

BERLIN Rocks

With the movie "TOP GUN", the group took off with the hit "TAKE MY BREATH AWAY" . . .

Suddenly the group found themselves with a number one hit after nearly three years and no new album on the shelf . . .

"It was gratifying, of course," says bass player John Crawford . . .

"TAKE MY BREATH AWAY" is really worlds away from what we were doing, even though we did include it on the album . . .

In a way it kind of underscores the diversity that I think has always been a part of our music . . .

Also, he says with a grin, "A number one single's a good way to come back . . .

College Night Reviews

Henry Chester was once quoted as saying that "Enthusiasm is the greatest asset in the world. It beats money and power and influence." If this is indeed the case, the Montevallo student body and the College Night performers are rich in many ways. College Night 1987 at the University of Montevallo was a fun-filled, spirited occasion featuring two creatively conceived and well-produced new plays.

"Second Chance" opened the evening with a lively, enjoyable overture that set the stage for a dynamic, fast-paced performance with only a few sour notes. The P.V. Two Orchestra introduced the audience to the 1987 Phillies Ice Cream Parlor and helped make the transition from the Pearly Gates of Heaven to the 1927 Phillies Speakeasy.

Kim Livesay and Suzi Robertson deserve credit for a well-written, coherent script that was improved by the well-choreographed direction of David C. Harwell. The real stars of this production, however, are the cast and supporting crews whose hard work, professionalism and obvious rehearsal discipline paid off in enthusiastic, often explosive moments of performance.

The cast is too large and was too well-intergrated to critique individual performances. Suffice it to say that the show was well-cast and, as strong as the leads were, they enjoyed the support and strength of many fine ensemble performances, especially the performances of the Phillies Tap Girls, the Phillies Customers, Pearl's Company, Johnny's Gang and the Ice Cream Parlor Customers.

Johnna Doty's music kept the show moving and provided the glue that held the production together.

"The Fall of Pedivier, the Prancing Paladin" is a fantasy penned by Christian Pinto and Johnathan Wood with music by Phillip Ratliff and Shawn Cushen. The highlights of the production are the scenes in the Boar's Head Tavern and Dwarven Mines. Throughout these scenes there is a contagious energy, enjoyment and commitment that was delightful to watch. The songs also provided the sizzle and strength that the show desperately needed. The choreography was cute, clean, simple and straitforward. The costumes, lighting, and scenery in the fantasy sequence were imaginative and well-executed. A lot of work went into the staging of this production and it paid off in the excitement of the fantasy scenes.

JIM VOLZ
MANAGING DIRECTOR
ALABAMA SHAKESPEARE FESTIVAL

I'm sure that everyone who sees the College Night productions for the first time is impressed with the amount of effort, both creative and physical, which has gone into them. I was impressed—but not really surprised. After all, I work with enthusiastic and energetic college students every day. What did surprise me, however, was that this enormous energy and enthusiasm is controlled and focused so well.

"Second Chance" The plot gimmick which allows both the logical spotting of musical numbers and dual uses of the most complicated set is very clever, and was used well. While almost all the costumes were just fine, given the huge cast and production constraints, I do want to compliment the designer of Daisey's costume, which was a knock-out. It was entirely of the period, but avoided cliches, and was a major boon to the performer in "setting her off" from the rest of the large company.

"The Fall of Pedivier" The great strength of this production, to my way of thinking, was its relative sophistication and unpredictability. I was particularly impressed with the rhythmic complexity of the music, and the avoidance of choreographic cliches, except for deliberate effect. There was considerable wit in the book as well. Musically, the high point for me was "If He'd Only Look at Me." The combination of good material and good performers made this number a real standout, which could hold its own in any show. While there were a number of skillful performers, Heinrich seemed to me to be the character in which the combination of comic business, dialogue and the performer seemed to come together with the best payoff, though his singing number was not as strong. Perhaps it should have been minimized, so that he did only what he does best. This probably accounts in large part for Dickie's great success with the audience; he was featured doing obviously does best, nothing more or less.

College Night was a pleasure for me. The whole creative experience associated with student-planned and student-developed musical plays is refreshing and delightful, as carried out at the University of Montevallo. The two plays—"Second Chance" and "The Fall of Pedivier, the Prancing Paladin"—made me feel good about the future of theatre, and believe me, sometimes I have doubts. My congratulations to all—authors, composers, directors, conductors, instrumental musicians, singers, dancers, choreographers, actors, costumers, scene designers, set builders, lighting technicians—all.

"Second Chance" began with a pleasing, lively overture, which got the performance off to a good start . . . It was when the production numbers came, "Second Chance" and especially "Bathtub Gin," that we knew the show was going to fly. The ensemble work and the choreography were really fine. The love song was good, the chorus line terrific. All the requisites were here —a clever story line, vitality and control, good music, generally good performances, and more vitality right down to the curtain call. I was pleased for the success of the people involved in the production. The show was cohesive. It knew what it wanted to be.

"The Fall of Pedivier, the Prancing Paladin," when it reached its several high points, was better than "Second Chance". It was more ambitious, more demanding, more destinctive. "Cut Throats" is a wonderful song, scenes three and four were excitingly set and lit and staged, Pediviere's solo scenes were effective, Stirge was fun to watch, the orchestral music had a pleasing richness to it.

Joan Jett and the Blackhearts

BMA

BLACKHEART RECORDS

Joan Jett Rocks UM

The bad girl of rock 'n roll paid a visit to Palmer Hall in the Spring of '86 . . .

The show was a long way from her start in 1975 when Joan Jett formed the first all-girl, hard rock band called the RUNAWAYS . . .

The RUNAWAYS released a half-dozen LPs and toured the world for five years, all before Joan's twenty-first birthday . . .

In 1986, Joan Jett was tapped by screenwriter/director Paul Schrader to co-star with Michael J. Fox in his new movie, LIGHT OF DAY . . .

Joan shines in this powerful human drama which is also her first acting debut . . .

She sings the title theme song "JUST AROUND THE CORNER TO THE LIGHT OF DAY" . . .

After ten years of professional music-making, Joan Jett still believes strongly in the rock and roll subculture and still adheres to the ethics on which the music was built . . .

Each year, Joan receives and reads thousands of fan letters from around the globe . . .

She personally responds to many of these letters, even calling those fans whose letters she finds especially touching . . .

In the first half of 1986, Joan's filming and recording schedule kept Joan off the road . . .

But live performance remains her first love . . . 1985 was a typical year for Joan as she toured 14 countries on three continents . . .

Joan Jett and the Blackhearts were the first American act of any kind to perform in the D.D.R. (East Germany), and the first English-speaking rock band to appear in Panama and the Dominican Republic . . .

In addition, Joan performs many goodwill concerts, and has appeared at U.S. Army bases throughout the world . . .

Cobblestone Christian

In sharp contrast to the hard hitting rock and roll style of Joan Jett and the Blackhearts, another performer brought his spiritual message to the campus of the University of Montevallo . . .

He looks like the clean-cut boy from next door, but he is much more than the eye beholds . . .

His music has been compared to the likes of Kenny Loggins, Dan Fogelberg and Larry Gatlin . . .

Put all these musical styles together and they add up to Urgent recording artist Phillip Sandifer . . .

His up-beat, energetic music, laced with straight-laced, thought-provoking lyrics places Phillip in the pop contemporary category without the usual flashy, luminous image . . .

His wife, Rene, says it best; "He's a regular guy, not squeaky clean, but rather clean behind the ears" . . .

"My motivating vision" says Phillip, is to reach the thinking, intellectually curious population, both non-Christian and Christian, by using music to uncover basic needs and inviting them to consider the Gospel as an answer . . .

Miss UM—Rhonda Mooney

Under the direction of Tim Lupanicci, this year's Miss Montevallo Pageant was one of the largest ever. The pageant is sponsored by the Student Government Association and the winner goes on to compete in the Miss Alabama Pageant.

Rhonda Mooney represented the Phi Mu sorority well, winning the title of Miss Montevallo. The other finalist (left) are from left to right: Amy Holt, fourth runner-up; Amy Gass, third runner-up; Rhonda Mooney, Miss Montevallo; Theresa Cain, first runner-up; and Michelle Carr, second runner-up. MONTEVALLO

With a season under his belt at the University of Montevallo, Rob Spivery is set to begin his second campaign as the Falcon's head coach. The personable Spivery took over the UM program in the summer of 1985 and led the falcons to an 11-18 record with mostly inherited talent against a most uneviable schedule. Spivery came to Montevallo promising just one thing, that the Falcons would be an exciting team to watch. Not one Falcon follower would accuse him of stretching the truth. Playing a wide-open style, nine of UM's 18 losses last season were by five points or less.

An Alabama native, Spivery graduated from South Girard High School in Phenix City.

Spivery and his wife, Marcia, who teaches at Montevallo High School, have a two-and-half-year-old daughter, Taylar Lea. The Spivery's reside in Montevallo.

LADIES

It's been said that you can never go back. First-year Lady Falcon head coach Joe Hagan has proved to be an exception to the rule.

Hagan, an assistant under Bud Childers during the 1983-84 Lady Falcon season, returned to the University of Montevallo this summer to fill the vacancy created when Cristy Earnhardt left for Western Kentucky University. Hagan has spent the past two seasons as head coach at Snead State Junior College in Boaz, Ala.

As a Lady Falcon assistant in 83-84 Hagan helped produce the first winning season in the history of the school with a 15-13 mark. UM tied for district and conference honors that season.

MONTEVALLO

Under the supervision of 14th-year head coach Bob Riesener the University of Montevallo baseball program is generally considered one of the finest in the state of Alabama. Riesener's success story speaks for itself. In the last seven years, four Montevallo teams have enjoyed NAIA top 20 finishes. Through the past nine years, seven former Falcons have been drafted into the professional ranks. Thirteen times UM baseball players have been selected as NAIA All-Americans and the list goes on and on.

Riesener, who notched his 500th career win last season, has been selected as the District 27 Coach of the Year in 1976, 1980, 1981 and 1984.

MONTEVALLO

For the first time in nine years there will be a new commander for University of Montevallo women's volleyball troops. Judy Green took over the Lady Falcon program in July, replacing Bev Warren, who resigned to accept a full-time teaching position at Smith College in Northampton, Mass.

Green, 24, has been an assistant in both volleyball and basketball at Western Carolina for the last two years.

A three-sport star at Western Carolina, Green earned four varsity letters in volleyball, basketball and softball. In addition, she was a nominee for an NCAA postgraduate scholarship and won the Alice Benton Award for the most outstanding physical education major at Western Carolina.

"I'm very excited about getting the chance to coach at Montevallo," she said." "I don't think I could find a better opportunity."

"It's a great challenge to come into a well established program and see if we can get even better," she said.

Orientation Workers

Each summer as the new students arrive at the University of Montevallo for their first taste of college life one of the first and most important people they meet is their orientation leader. This is the person who will answer all their questions, show them where everything is and make them feel at home in their new home away from home. Getting started at college is hard enough, even with help, one can't imagine trying to find his way about with no help at all. The summer orientation leaders provide a truly invaluable service. Members below are: Row 1, Tim Lupinacci, Kathy Sellers, Kellie Martin, Stan Mims, Row 2, Patrick Evans, Chris Goodbeer, Joe Hill, Milt Thomas, Nick Davis.

Alabamian

The Alabamian, UM's student newspaper, saw its 64th year of publication in '86-'87 through the efforts of a hard-working and dedicated staff.

Facing many hectic deadlines and endless hours of working literally from sunset to sunrise, the staff covered campus news from UM's "financial emergency" to a history-making College Night to the schools reattainment of economic stability.

Although returning from '85-'86 with an almost completely new staff, the bi-weekly publication experienced a successful and productive year, providing a tremendous learning environment for all involved.

Tower

The "Tower" is the University of Montevallo literary magazine. Students contribute examples of poetry, short stories and art which are judged with the winners being printed in the yearly release of the magazine. This provides a forum for the display of students best works. This year's editor was Donna Lois Carter (right). Donna did an excellent job, turning out one of the most professional and entertaining books seen. Members of the staff are: clockwise from bottom left, Jason Mitchell, Donna Carter, Teri Wilbanks, Danny Gamble (What a Guy), Cynthia McGinnia, and Kim Livsay.

Montage

The University of Montevallo yearbook is known as the Montage. That's right these are the people who put this very book together for you. This year's editor was Faron Brindley, a three year veteran of the yearbook staff. The Business Manager was Nancy Brindley a former editor. Included in the staff are Ariahn Davis, Alan Clabough, Tina Greenlee, Sherry Barrett, Tina Pedigo.

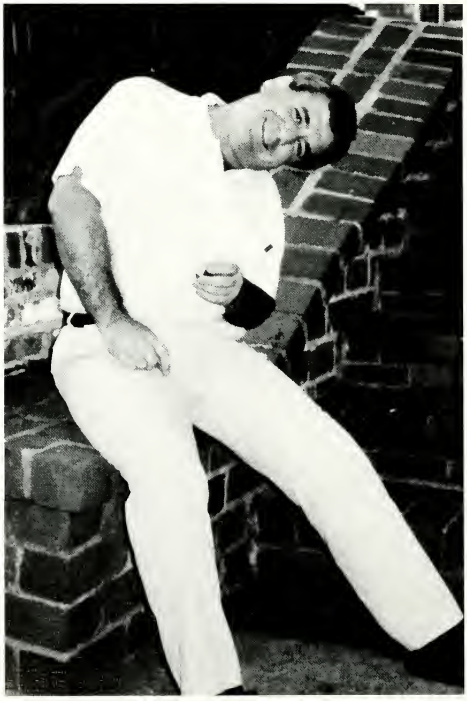
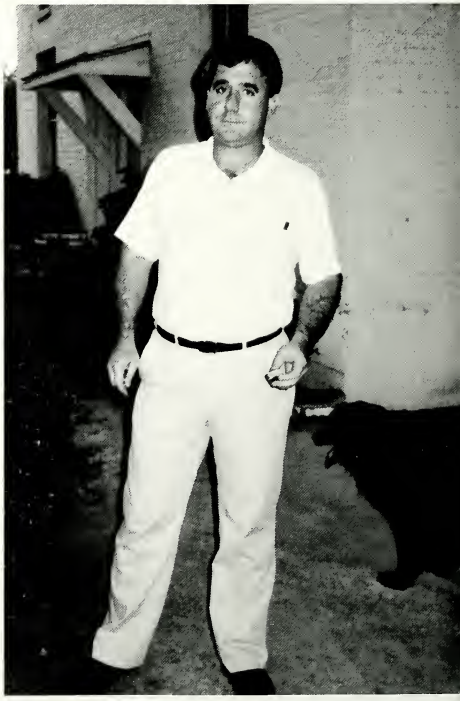
Dedication
Larry Smith

As the 1986-87 school year at the University of Montevallo came to a close we found that we were going to lose a member of the faculty in the Mass Comm Department. While it is nothing unusual for a professor to leave, this departure was different because Larry Smith is also a friend. Larry, thanks for the fun the support and the knowledge.

P.S. If you ever run into Rose, tell her hi from the gang.





THE END

I'm outa here . . .

The Mission of the University of Montevallo, unique in higher education in Alabama, is to provide its students from throughout the State an affordable, geographically accessible, small college public higher education experience of high quality with strong emphasis on undergraduate liberal studies and with professional programs supported by a broad base of arts and sciences, designed for their intellectual and personal growth in the pursuit of meaningful employment and responsible, informed citizenship.
